University of Colorado Law School Criminal & Immigration Defense Clinic

303-492-5830

Email: Jennipher.DallasJobe@colorado.edu

Professor Violeta Chapin and her law students represent noncitizen clients who are navigating a wide variety of immigration and criminal defense matters. Legal services in the clinic are provided for free, and there is often financial assistance available for immigration-related fees. Law students represent noncitizen clients under the supervision of Prof. Chapin, who has been a practicing attorney for 22 years, with 15 years in the clinic teaching students about immigration and criminal law. The Clinic operates during the academic school year, from late August-early May, and accepts referrals for new cases on a rolling basis. To connect with the Criminal & Immigration Clinic, please email the clinic manager, Jennipher Dallas-Jobe at Jennipher.DallasJobe@colorado.edu, and specify what assistance you are looking for, or call the Clinic directly at 303-492-5830.

1604 H Street, Suite 201
Salida, CO 81201
719-539-4251

CLS is a non-profit agency that provides free, high-quality civil legal services to eligible low-income Coloradans and seniors. Please note: we have an intake process that all applicants must complete. We aren't a hotline, which means that we must screen all applicants before help can be provided. Also, please understand that, unlike criminal cases, there is no right to an attorney in civil cases for low-income Coloradans. With the resources we have, we do our best every day to provide legal assistance to as many eligible applicants as we can. Thank you for your understanding!
